

The Sutton Trust, Paving the Way report – March 2022

Access to high-quality careers advice is essential for helping young people make informed decisions on their future pathways.

Currently, one in three secondary school students do not feel confident about their next steps in education and training. State school pupils are almost twice as likely as private school pupils to say that they have not taken part in any careers activities - such as sessions with careers advisers and attending careers fairs.

The Sutton Trust previous research on careers in 2014 highlighted a postcode lottery of careers guidance for students across the country.

While progress has been made, the report highlights that there is still too much variability in provision.
