

Why did we develop this Qdos Careers App?

Additional careers education support, at this time of national crisis...

Given current 'social distancing' restrictions and the impending economic recession, Manor Property Group has brought forward planned investment in a national Careers App, to support careers education across the U.K. This is in recognition of the 800,000 young people who will be leaving school or choosing further study options this summer- no doubt compounded by greater demand for careers advice for those unable to go to university or work.

There is a lot of information on careers- options and routes to get there- but this is fragmented online and varies on service to young people in each region and each school/college. Young people have described career decision making as overwhelming and are often not clear on where to start. Adults are often looking to change careers or may wish to upskill to build career opportunities.

We all need help, to ensure our decisions about our education and work are well informed...

Manor Property Group (Manor) is supported and run by a family investing to provide a legacy of regional and national Careers Education resources in the U.K.

- This July (2020) Manor is launching this online signposting app- collating national authoritative resource on education routes and careers guidance, to support our nation, amidst partial school closures and rising youth/wider unemployment.
- Next year, we expect to commence opening a series of regional Qdos Career Hubs, providing modern work environments and technology, to support community-based careers education. See: <https://qdos-career-hub.com>
